- For cargoes designated for movement by rail remaining on the Terminal more than five (5) days after discharge

The Port of Los Angeles has announced that assessment and collection of the CONTAINER EXCESS DWELL FEE shall commence on November 15 (Collection Comment Date). The Port has further determined that import containers designated for movement by truck “on the terminal for more than 8 days at the Collection Commencement Date [will be] deemed to be at 9 days for the purposes of fee charges,” while import container containers designated for movement by rail for more than five days at the Collection Commencement Date will be “deemed to be at 6 days for the purposes of the fee charges.”

The Port of Long Beach has made no similar announcements or clarification of its rules; should the Port of Long Beach do so, we will notify you promptly of same.

As before, ZIM will continue to identify solutions that might help mitigate the impact of the Ports’ actions and assist you in removing your cargoes from the Terminal before they are subject to the above fees. We appreciate your continued support and will keep you informed of developments as they occur.
